

LONDON CITY'S WEB NETS THE WORLD

IT DOESN'T MATTER where you are in the world, finding out about London City Airport is now easier than ever

On Tuesday 24 February the Docklands airport launched its own website: www.londoncityairport.com

Timetables, access by road and rail, facilities and all will be available on the website, created by corporate communications design company The Edge. Latest updates are covered in Hot News; journalists can scan press releases, history and background – in fact the world of London City is now open to the world!

“It is high time we were able to talk directly to anyone interested in finding out about us,” says London City Airport’s Managing Director Richard Gooding. “We believe the internet is a fantastic medium for us and it’s quite true that the medium is the message. London City Airport will be out there with its own particular and special message for the business travel world.”
